AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

AMERICAN MINISTER PATRICK EGAN INSULTED.

A Correspondent of the London Times Refuses An Introduction—Fairhaven the Scene of a Murder—The Portland Orient Steamer Line—Tacoma Toughs.

FAIRHAVEN, Nov. 8.—Philip Brady, a disreputable character recently from Seattle, shot and fatally wounded Chas. Armstrong, a laborer, here to-night. The latter objected to Brady attempting to rob a man named Hogan, and Brady objected to interference on the wounded man's part. After a brief discussion, Brady suddenly drew a pistol and shot Armstrong in the head. The bullet lodged at the base of the brain. Public indignation is intense and the citizens threaten to take the law in their own hands.

Twenty Stories High.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The corner stone of the magnificent Masonic temple to be erected at the corner of Rudolph and State streets was laid this afternoon by Grand Master M. Pearson, with solemn and impressive ceremonies of the masonic order. The ceremonies of laying the corner stone were preceded by a parade of the local lodges in which 5,000 men participated. The temple when completed will be twenty stories high, and will be the largest building of the kind in the world.

A Lively Mayor.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 8.—The sensational career of W. W. Cottrell, who acquired much notoriety a few months ago by his course while mayor of Cedar Keys, Fla., was ended here to-day with a load of shot from a gun in the hands of Chief of Police Gerald. Cottrell had been in the city several days drinking freely and acting in his usual style. Last night he was arrested for disorderly conduct, and when released on bail left the headquarters vowing vengeance against Chief Gerald. The latter was warned by friends, and knowing Cottrell to be a man who shot on sight, was on his guard. This morning Cottrell challenged him to a duel, but to this the chief paid no attention. About 11 o'clock Cottrell rode up with friend, and as soon as he started to enter was shot down. Gerald surrendered to the sheriff. The sympathy of the citizens generally are with him.

Portland-China Steamers.

PORTLAND, Nov. 8.—On account of the failure of the rice crop in Japan, Frank Upton, of Kobe, Japan, who contracted with the Union Pacific to put on a line of steamers between Portland and China and Japan, did not deem it advisable to start the line last spring, especially, as by the terms of the contract, he was allowed a year in which to put on the steamers. He now writes to Assistant Traffic Manager B. Campbell, of the Union Pacific, that he has made arrangements for the necessary steamers, and that there need be no anxiety in regard to his inaugurating the line about May 1, 1891. The flour trade between Portland and China is increasing rapidly, and the Canadian Pacific steamer Mongkut, now here, will take 1,250 tons for the next China steamer.

A Gentlemanly Thief.

TACOMA, Nov. 8.—Frank T. Houghton, of the firm of Berry & Houghton, job printers, to-day reported to the police that he had been robbed, though very politely, by highwaymen, at the corner of K and Eleventh streets, at midnight last night. He was coming down town, he says, after a visit on the hill, and when at the point named was confronted by two well-dressed men, one of whom held a revolver in his face and requested him to please throw up his hands. He complied, and while he stood thus, with his hands skyward, robber No. 2 relieved him of an $85 gold watch and a chain and several dollars in loose change. Then the man with the revolver bade Mr. Houghton depart, remarking that he hoped to meet him again under equally favorable circumstances. "If we must be robbed on the public streets at night," Mr. Houghton says, "we might much better be relieved of our valuables by such gentlemanly, thoughtful and appreciative fellows as held me up, than by the thoughtless, vulgar fellows who wield the sand-bag and slung-shot."

PATRICK EGAN INSULTED.

Newspaper Correspondent Refuses to Meet the Minister to Chili.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—An interesting diplomatic story reaches here through the Commercio, of Valparaiso, Chili. The American minister to that country is Patrick Egan, the well-known Irish land-leaguer, of Lincoln, Neb. On the 18th of September the president of the republic gave a reception to the members of the diplomatic corps and other distinguished gentlemen. Among the guests were Egan and a Mr. Thompson, representative in Valparaiso of the London Times. During the course of the evening one of the attaches of the Chilian foreign office presented Mr. Egan to the English correspondent. The latter declined to accept the introduction. Colored with confusion, the gentleman who had made the introduction began an apology to the American minister. Egan, who seemed to view the matter with indifference, politely responded: "You have nothing to apologize for. A gentlemen would not have insulted me and a blackguard cannot."

ROYAL JUBILEE HOSPITAL.

Completion of the Amalgamation With the French Benevolent Society.

Last evening Mr. Wm. M. Chudley witnessed the completion and the signatures of all the trustees of the executive committee to the conveyance and deeds of the French hospital to the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, and nothing now remains to be done further than providing duplicates to the provincial government for an order-in-council to ratify the transfer in the terms of the act passed last session.

The French Benevolent Society will next appoint three of their number to act as directors on the board of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital. This arranged, they will probably take their seats at the first meeting of the Board in January next.

The local government having stated their intention, some time ago, of providing an alms house for the indigent sick of the province, and the necessity of the city's making similar provision under a clause in the municipal act of last session, an opportunity now presents itself for the carrying out of these projects, either conjointly or separately, with comparatively little trouble to either parties, particularly as the building is quite ready for occupancy. The Board of the Jubilee Hospital are open to any reasonable offer in this direction.

The following are the correct terms of the deed of transfer:

That the French Benevolent and Mutual Society transfer their property in the City of Victoria, consisting of lots 1197, 1198 and a portion of lot 1199 in fee simple, with buildings thereon and contents, to the directors of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, on the following conditions, viz: (1st) That the present members of the French Benevolent and Mutual Society numbering 68, be represented on the Board of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital on the basis of one (1) representative for every twenty (20) surviving members of the said society, but that when there shall be under twenty (20) members of the society surviving, the society shall have the right to have one (1) representative on the hospital board so long as any remain.

(2nd) That all the present members of the French Benevolent and Mutual Society become life members of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, the term "life member" being understood to mean "one who is entitled to receive, free of charge, the treatment of a first-class pay patient at the said hospital, and who shall enjoy all the rights, benefits and privileges of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, except the right to vote for the election of directors at the annual meeting.

Provided always, that the directors of the hospital shall only be bound to receive a member into the pay-patients wards when unoccupied, but room shall be provided at all times at the hospital to such member when actually in need of hospital treatment.

(3rd) That medical advice and treatment be furnished at the hospital free of charge to all members of the French Benevolent and Mutual Society, who may be ill and do not wish to become in-patients at the hospital.

(4th) That on the death of any member of the French Benevolent and Mutual Society at the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, the representative directors of the society on the hospital board, shall be notified of the fact, and shall forthwith make provision for the remains of the deceased member being conveyed to the cemetery in a hearse, the expense of which shall be borne by the hospital board, upon its being shown to the satisfaction of the board, that the deceased's estate or friends are unable to meet the same.

(5th). The Board of Directors of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital shall furnish to each member of the French Benevolent & Mutual Society the following certificate, viz:

This is to certify that Mr. —— as a member of the French Benevolent & Mutual Society on the —— day of —— 18—, is entitled to all the benefits and privileges of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital free of charge, under and by virtue of an agreement dated the —— day of —— 18—, and made between the Board of Directors and the French Benevolent & Mutual Society, and ratified by order-in-council, dated —— day of —— A.D. 18—.

(6th). The members of the French Benevolent & Mutual Society shall in all respects conform to the rules and regulations of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital for the time being.

PROF. KOCH TO BE PAID HANDSOMELY BY THE GERMANS.

They Will Also Erect a Hospital—The Czar's Pleasant Journeyings—The Bank of England Places a Discount on Gold—Ottawa Happenings and Other News.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 8.—The police protection at all the imperial palaces has been increased. No loiterers are permitted within the vicinity of the winter palace. The railway stations between St. Petersburg and Galschina are double guarded, and the minutes examination made of every route traversed by the czar.

VIENNA, Nov. 8.—The czarowitch arrived to-day, on his way to Trieste. He was met at the station by the emperor and several archdukes. Greetings were exchanged of the most cordial nature. At Trieste to-day a bomb exploded in front of the monument to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the annexation of Trieste to Austria. No damage was done.

Bank of England Discount.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The heavy withdrawal of gold from the Bank of England for the continent, was the cause of the bank directors raising the rate of discount to six per cent. If the withdrawal of gold continues a further advance will be made in the discount rate. At the Stock Exchange, announcement of the increased rate caused a flatness, but the business of the market has been slowly recovering.

Shooting of Prof. Bright.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The woman arrested for shooting Dr. Bright, of Oxford, is Miss Kate Riordon. It is supposed that she was made furious by the prospect that Dr. Bright's daughter was about to marry Mr. Haines, who had formerly paid attentions to Miss Riordon. Mr. Haines declares he never was engaged to Miss Riordon, and that she is laboring under an illusion.

CANADIAN NEWS.

Steamship Service with England Arranged For—Birchall Getting Anxious.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—The Canadian Government has decided to award the contract for the Atlantic fast steamship service to a British syndicate of which Lord Hartington is the head. This action is contingent upon the acceptance of certain modifications suggested by the Dominion authorities, but which, it is said, are not of such an important character that the syndicate will refuse to comply with them. The annual subsidy to be granted to the company is $700,000 for a weekly service by steamers equal to 19 knots at sea and 20 knots on the trial trip.

Major-General Crossman, M. P. for Portsmouth, England, who is in the city, had an interview with the Fisheries Department to-day regarding fish culture in which he takes a great interest, having come to Ottawa for that purpose.

Birchall Anxious.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Birchall has returned from her visit to Ottawa. She is still hopeful and is confident of her husband's innocence. Birchall is a trifle anxious now that such great efforts are being put forth to have his sentence commuted. He still hopes, but the strain on his nerves is greater than during the trial. Affidavits have been forwarded to Sir John Thompson to the effect that Alice Smith and Helen Fallon, two imported c[illegible]n witnesses at the Birchall trial, wh[illegible]d been excluded from the courtroo[illegible]y order of the judge, contrived to [illegible]at the evidence by using a telephone w[illegible]ch had a transmitter in the courtroom.

KOCH'S GREAT DISCOVERY.

Germany Will Pay Him Handsomely and Erect a Special Hospital.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Prof. Koch had an audience with the Emperor early this morning on the subject of his new cure for consumption. His Majesty proposes that the government shall purchase the invention outright and build a special hospital for its application, Prof. Koch receiving a large annuity besides. But it is stated that it has been ascertained as a fact that several mild cases have been completely cured by Dr. Koch, while in graver cases where the disease had obtained a hold and portions of the lungs had wasted away, the life of the patient has been prolonged and the growth and progress of the bacillus been arrested, if the pest has not been entirely destroyed.

OCCUPATION OF AFRICA.

France Must Wait for Great Britain to Fulfill Her Promises.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—In the deputies to-day, during debate on the foreign estimates, Belesse, of the Right, reviewed the attack on the African convention with England. He advocated an alliance with Russia, on the ground that the interests of France were indentical with those of Russia. Ribot, minister of foreign affairs, declared that France was peaceably inclined and threatened nobody. At the same time she did not conceal the fact that she was placing her armies in a position in which they would be ready for every emergency. With reference to British occupation of Egypt, he asked if anyone could suggest a practical means of obtaining the immediate evacuation of the country. France must wait for England to fulfill her promises.

The proposal to reject the credit for an embassy to the Vatican was rejected by a vote of 317 to 205. When the estimate for the war department came up, Chery, on behalf of the committee on war estimates, said every possible economy had been effected. Notwithstanding the greater forces of France, the ordinary war expenditures amounted to 500,000,000 francs, as against Germany's 500,000,000, while the extra expenditures of France amounted amount[illegible] many's 325,000,000. Germany took the initiative in increasing military strength and France was obliged to follow. The government was not responsible for the state of affairs, which was injuring the economical interests of Europe. Probably within a few years fresh expenses must be borne by France in order to maintain her military power, but he was sure the chamber would grant everything necessary to insure the country's moral and material greatness. His remarks were received with great applause.

SOLOMON'S GARDENS.

DR. TALMAGE CONTINUES HIS SKETCHES OF THE HOLY LAND.

Continued Interest in the Lectures at the Tabernacle and the Addresses Delivered Under the Auspices of The Christian Herald—The Resurrection.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 2.—Dr. Talmage preached the sixth sermon on his tour in Palestine today. After a pastorate of twenty-two years in this city it is astonishing to see the crowds of people who throng the Academy of Music every Sunday morning to listen to his discourses. No less remarkable are the audiences that New York city furnishes at the Christian Herald services every Sunday night. Today's sermon was on the gardens and public works of Israel's magnificent king, and the text Ecclesiastes ii, 4-6: "I made me great works, I builded me houses, I planted me vineyards, I made me gardens and orchards, and planted trees in them of all kinds of fruits; I made me pools of water to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees." Dr. Talmage said:

A spring morning and breakfast at Jerusalem. A king with robes snowy white in chariot decked with gold, drawn by eight horses, high mettled, and housings as brilliant as if scolloped out of that very sunrise, and like the winds for speed, followed by a regiment of archers on horseback, with hand on gilded bow and arrows with steel points flashing in the sun, clad from head to foot in Tyrian purple, and black hair sprinkled with gold dust, all dashing down the road, the horses at full run, the reins loose on their necks, and the crack of whips and the halloo of the reckless cavalcade putting the miles at defiance. Who is it, and what is it? King Solomon taking an outing before breakfast from Jerusalem to his gardens and parks and orchards and reservoirs, six miles down the road toward Hebron. What a contrast between that and myself on that very road one morning last December going afoot, for our plain vehicle turned back for photographic apparatus forgotten; we on the way to find what is called Solomon's pools, the ancient water works of Jerusalem, and the gardens of a king nearly three thousand years ago. We cross the aqueduct again and again, and here we are at the three great reservoirs, not ruins of reservoirs, but the reservoirs themselves, that Solomon built three millenniums ago for the purpose of catching the mountain streams and passing them to Jerusalem to slake the thirst of the city, and also to irrigate the most glorious range of gardens that ever bloomed with all colors or breathed with all redolence, for Solomon was the greatest horticulturist, the greatest botanist, the greatest ornithologist, the greatest capitalist and the greatest scientist of his century.

WONDERFUL ANCIENT MASONRY.

Come over the piles of gray rock, and here we are at the first of the three reservoirs, which are on three great levels, the base of the top reservoir higher than the top of the second, the base of the second reservoir higher than the top of the third, so arranged that the waters gathered from several sources above shall descend from basin to basin, the sediment of the water deposited in each of the three, so that by the time it gets down to the aqueduct which is to take it to Jerusalem it has had three filterings, and is as pure as when the clouds rained it. Wonderful specimens of masonry are these three reservoirs. The white cement fastening the blocks of stone together is now just as when the trowels three thousand years ago smoothed the layers. The highest reservoir 380 feet by 220; the second, 423 feet by 160, and the lowest reservoir, 580 feet by 160, and deep enough and wide enough and mighty enough to float an ocean steamer.

On that December morning we saw the waters rolling down from reservoir to reservoir, and can well understand how in this neighborhood the imperial gardens were one great blossom, and the orchard one great basket of fruit, and that Solomon in his palace, writing the Song of Songs and Ecclesiastes, may have been drawing illustrations from what he had seen that very morning in the royal gardens when he alluded to melons, and mandrakes, and apricots, and grapes, and pomegranates, and figs, and spikes, and cinnamon, and calamus, and camphire, and "apple trees among the trees of the wood," and the almond tree as flourishing, and to myrrh and frankincense, and represented Christ as "gone down into his gardens, and the beds of spices to feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies," and to "eyes like fish pools," and to the voice of the turtle dove as heard in the land. I think it was when Solomon was showing the Queen of Sheba through these gardens that the Bible says of her, "There remained no more spirit in her." She gave it up.

But all this splendor did not make Solomon happy. One day, after getting back from his morning ride and before the horses had yet been cooled off, and rubbed down by the royal equerry, Solomon wrote the memorable words following my text, like a dirge played after a grand march, "Behold all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun." In other words, "It don't pay!" Would God that we might all learn the lesson that this world cannot produce happiness! At Marseilles there is a castellated house on high ground crowned with all that grove and garden can do, and the whole place looks out upon as enchanting a landscape as the world holds, water and hill clasping hands in a perfect bewitchment of scenery, but the owner of that place is totally blind, and to him all this goes for nothing, illustrating the truth that whether one be physically or morally blind brilliancy of surrounding cannot give satisfaction; but tradition says that when the "wise men of the east" were being guided by the star on the way to Bethlehem they for a little while lost sight of that star, and in despair and exhaustion came to a well to drink, when looking down into the well they saw the star reflected in the water and that cheered them, and they resumed their journey; and I have the notion that though grandeur and pomp of surroundings may not afford peace at the well of God's consolation, close by, you may find happiness, and the plainest cup at the well of salvation may hold the brightest star that ever shone from the heavens.

PALESTINE READY TO BLOOM AGAIN.

Although these Solomonic gardens are in ruins, there are now growing there flowers that are to be found nowhere else in the Holy Land. How do I account for that? Solomon sent out his ships and robbed the gardens of the whole earth for flowers, and planted these exotics here, and these particular flowers are direct descendants of the foreign plants he imported. Mr. Meshullam, a Christian Israelite, on the very site of these royal gardens, has in our day, by putting in his own spade, demonstrated that the ground is only waiting for the right call to yield just as much luxuriance and splendor eighteen hundred years after Christ as it yielded Solomon one thousand years before Christ. So all Palestine is waiting to become the richest scene of horticulture, arboriculture and agriculture.

Recent travelers in the Holy Land speak of the rocky and stony surface of nearly all Palestine as an impassable barrier to the future cultivation of the soil. But if they had examined minutely the rocks and stones of the Holy Land they would find that they are being skeletonized and are being melted into the soil and, being for the most part limestone, they are doing for that land what the American and English farmer does when, at great expense and fatigue, he draws his wagon load of lime and scatters it on the fields for their enrichment. The storms, the winters, the great midsummer heats of Palestine, by crumbling up and dissolving the rocks are gradually preparing Palestine and Syria to yield a product like unto the luxuriant Westchester farms of New York, and Lancaster county farms of Pennsylvania, and Somerset county farms of New Jersey and the other magnificent farm fields of Minnesota and Wisconsin, and the opulent orchards of Maryland and California. Let the Turk be driven out and the American or Englishman or Scotchman go in and Mohammedanism withdraw its idolatry and pure Christianity build its altars, and the irrigation of which Solomon's pools was only a suggestion will make all that land from Dan to Beersheba as fertile, and aromatic, and resplendent as on the morning when the king rode out to his pleasure grounds in chariot so swift and followed by mounted riders so brilliant that it was for speed like a hurricane followed by a cyclone.

WISDOM OF THE ANCIENTS.

As I look upon this great aqueduct of Palestine, a wonderous specimen of ancient masonry, about seven feet high, two feet wide, sometimes tunneling the solid rock and then rolling its waters through stone-ware pipes, an aqueduct doing its work ten miles before it gets to those three reservoirs, and then gathering their wealth of refreshment and pouring it on to the mighty city of Jerusalem and filling the brazen sea of her temple, and the bathrooms of her palaces, and the great pools of Siloam, and Hezekiah, and Bethesda, I find that our century has no monopoly of the world's wonders, and that the conceited age in which we live had better take in some of the sails of its pride when it remembers that it is hard work in later ages to get masonry that will last fifty years, to say nothing of the three thousand, and no modern machinery could lift blocks of stone like some of those standing high up in the walls of Baalbec, and the art of printing claimed for recent ages was practiced by the Chinese fourteen hundred years ago, and that our midnight lightning express rail train was foreseen by the prophet Nahum, when in the Bible he wrote, "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways, they shall seem like torches, they shall run like lightnings," and our electric telegraph was foreseen by Job, when in the Bible he wrote, "Canst thou send lightnings that they may go and say unto thee, 'Here we are?'" What is that talking by the lightnings but the electric telegraph? I do not know but that the electric forces now being year by year more thoroughly harnessed may have been employed in ages extinct, and that the lightnings all up and down the sky have been running around like lost hounds to find their former master.

Embalment was a more thorough art three thousand years ago than today. Dentistry, that we suppose one of the important arts discovered in recent centuries, is proven to be four thousand years old by the filled teeth of the mummies in the museums at Cairo, Egypt, and artificial teeth on gold plates found by Belzoni in the tombs of departed nations. We have been taught that Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood so late as the Seventeenth century. Oh, no! Solomon announces it in Ecclesiastes, where first having shown that he understood the spinal cord, silver colored as it is, and that it relaxes in old age—"the silver cord be loosed," goes on to compare the heart to a pitcher at a well, for the three canals of the heart do receive the blood like a pitcher, "or the pitcher be broken at the fountain." What is that but the circulation of the blood, found out twenty-six hundred years before Harvey was born? After many centuries of exploration and calculation astronomy finds out that the world is round. Why, Isaiah knew it was round thousands of years before when in the Bible he said: "The Lord sitteth upon the circle of the earth." Scientists toiled on for centuries and found out refraction or that the rays of light when touching the earth were not straight, but bent or curved. Why, Job knew that when ages before in the Bible he wrote of the light: "It is turned as clay to the seal."

OLD PAINTERS AND DYERS.

In the old cathedrals of England modern painters in the repair of windows are trying to make something as good as the window painting of four hundred years ago and always failing by the unanimous verdict of all who examine and compare. The color of modern painting fades in fifty years, while the color of the old masters is as well preserved after five hundred years as after one year. I saw last winter on the walls of exhumed Pompeii paintings with color as fresh as though made the day before, though they were buried eighteen hundred years ago. The making of Tyrian purple is an impossibility now. In our modern potteries we are trying hard to make cups and pitchers and bowls as exquisite as those exhumed from Herculaneum, and our artificers are attempting to make jewelry for ear and neck and finger equal to that brought up from the mausoleums of two thousand years before Christ. We have in our time glass in all shapes and all colors, but Pliny, more than eighteen hundred years ago, described a malleable glass which, if thrown upon the ground and dented, could be pounded straight again by the hammer or could be twisted around the wrists, and that confounds all the glass manufactories of our own time. I tried in Damascus, Syria, to buy a Damascus blade, one of those swords that could be bent double or tied into a knot without breaking. I could not get one. Why? The Nineteenth century cannot make a Damascus blade. If we go on enlarging our cities we may after a while get a city as large as Babylon, which was five times the size of London.

These aqueducts of Solomon that I visit today, finding them in good condition three thousand years after construction, make me think that the world may have forgotten more than it now knows. The great honor of our age is not machinery, for the ancients had some styles of it more wonderful; nor art, for the ancients had art more exquisite and durable; nor architecture, for Roman Coliseum and Grecian Acropolis surpass all modern architecture; nor cities, for some of the ancient cities were larger than ours in the sweep of their pomp. But our attempts must be in moral achievement and gospel victory. In that we have already surpassed them, and in that direction let the ages push on. Let us brag less of worldly achievement and thank God for moral opportunity. More good men and good women is what this world wants. Toward moral elevation and spiritual attainment let the chief struggle be. The source of all that I will show you before sundown of this day on which we have visited the pools of Solomon and the gardens of the king.

BETHLEHEM OF JUDEA.

We are on this December afternoon on the way to the cradle of him who called himself greater than Solomon. We are coming upon the chief cradle of all the world, not lined with satin, but strewn with straw; not sheltered by a palace, but covered by a barn; not presided over by a princess, but hovered over by a peasant girl; yet a cradle the canopy of which is angelic wings, and the lullaby of which is the first Christmas carol ever sung, and from which all the events of the past and all the events of the future have and must take date as being B. C. or A. D.—before Christ or after Christ. All eternity past occupied in getting ready for this cradle, and all eternity to come to be employed in celebrating its consequences.

I said to the tourist companies planning our oriental journey, "Put us in Bethlehem in December, the place and the month of our Lord's birth," and we had our wish. I am the only man who however attempted to tell how Bethlehem looked at the season Jesus was born. Tourists and writers are there in February, or March, or April, when the valleys are an embroidered sheet of wild flowers, and anemones and ranunculus are flushed as though from attempting to climb the steeps, and lark and bullfinch are flooding the air with bird orchestra. But I was there in December, a winter month, the barren beach between the two oceans of redolence. I was told I must not go there at that season, told so before I started, told so in Egypt; the books told me so; all travelers that I consulted about it told me so. But I was determined to see Bethlehem the same month in which Jesus arrived, and nothing could dissuade me. Was I not right in wanting to know how the Holy Land looked when Jesus came to it? He did not land amid flowers and song. When the angels chanted on the famous birthnight all the fields of Palestine were silent. The glowing skies were answered by gray rocks. As Bethlehem stood against a bleak, wintry sky I climbed up to it, as through a bleak wintery sky Jesus descended upon it. His way down was from warmth to chill, from bloom to barrenness, from everlasting June to a sterile December. If I were going to Palestine as a botanist and to study the flora of the land I would go in March; but I went as a minister of Christ to study Jesus and so I went in December. I wanted to see how the world's front door looked when the heavenly stranger entered it.

The town of Bethlehem, to my surprise, is in the shape of a horseshoe, the houses extending clear onto the prongs of the horseshoe, the whole scene more rough and rude than can be imagined. Verily, Christ did not choose a soft, genial place in which to be born. The gate through which our Lord entered this world was a gate of rock, a hard, cold gate, and the gate through which he departed was a swing gate of sharpened spears. We enter a gloomy church built by Constantine over the place in which Jesus was born. Fifteen lamps burning day and night and from century to century light our way to the spot which all authorities, Christian and Jew and Mohammedan, agree upon as being the place of our Saviour's birth, and covered by a marble slab, marked by a silver star sent from Vienna, and the words: "Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary."

HE WAS BORN IN A CATTLE PEN.

But standing there I thought, though this is the place of the nativity, how different the surroundings of the wintry night in which Jesus came! At that time it was a khan, or a cattle pen. I visited one of these khans, now standing and looking just as in Christ's time. We rode in under the arched entrance and dismounted. We found the building of stone, and around an open square, without roof. The building is more than two thousand years old. It is two stories high; in the center are camels, horses and mules. Caravans halt here for the night or during a long storm. The open square is large enough to accommodate a whole herd of cattle, a flock of sheep or caravan of camels. The neighboring Bedouins here find market for their hay, straw and meats. Off from this center there are twelve rooms for human habitation. The only light is from the door. I went into one of these rooms and found a woman cooking the evening meal. There were six cows in the same room. On a little elevation there was some straw where the people sat and slept when they wished to rest. It was in a room similar to that our Lord was born.

This was the cradle of a king, and yet what cradle ever held so much? Civilization! Liberty! Redemption! Your pardon and mine! Your peace and mine! Your heaven and mine! Cradle of a universe! Cradle of a God! The gardens of Solomon we visited this morning were only a type of what all the world will be when this illustrious personage now born shall have completed his mission. The horses of finest limb, and gayest champ of bit, and sublimest arch of neck, that ever brought Solomon down to these adjoining gardens was but a poor type of the horse upon which this conqueror, born in the barn, shall ride, when according to apocalyptic vision all the "armies of heaven shall follow him on white horses." The waters that rush down these hills into yonder three great reservoirs of rock, and then pour in marvelous aqueduct into Jerusalem till the brazen sea is full, and the baths are full, and Siloam is full, are only an imperfect type of the rivers of delight which, as the result of this great one's coming, shall roll on for the slaking of the thirst of all nations. The palace of Lebanon cedar from which the imperial cavalcade passed out in the early morning, and to which it returned with glowing cheek and jingling harness and lathered sides, is feeble of architecture compared with the house of many mansions into which this one born this winter month on these bleak heights shall conduct us when our sins are all pardoned, our battles all fought, our tears all wept, our work all done.

THE CRADLE OF OUR FAITH.

Standing here at Bethlehem do you not see that the most honored thing in all the earth is the cradle? To what else did loosened star ever point? To what else did heaven lower balconies of light filled with chanting immortals? The way the cradle rocks the world rocks. God bless the mothers all the world over! The cradles decide the destinies of nations. In ten thousand of them are this moment the hands that will yet give benediction of mercy or hurl bolts of doom, the feet that will mount the steeps toward God or descend the blasted way, the lips that will pray or blaspheme. Oh, the cradle! It is more tremendous than the grave. Where are most of the leaders of the Twentieth century soon to dawn upon us? Are they on thrones? No. In chariots? No. In pulpits? No. In forums? No. In senatorial halls? No. In counting houses? No. They are in the cradle. The most tremendous thing in the universe and next to God is to be a mother. Lord Shaftesbury said, "Give me a generation of Christian mothers, and I will change the whole phase of society in twelve months." Oh, the cradle! Forget not the one in which you were rocked. Though old and worn out that cradle may be standing in attic or barn, forget not the foot that swayed it, the lips that sang over it, the tears that dropped upon it, the faith in God that made way for it. The boy Walter Scott did well when he spent the first five guines piece he ever earned as a present to his mother.

Dishonor not the cradle, though it may, like the one my sermon celebrates, have been a cradle in a barn, for I think it was a Christian cradle. That was a great cradle in which Martin Luther lay, for from it came forth the reformation of the Sixteenth century. That was a great cradle in which Daniel O'Connell lay, for from it came forth an eloquence that will be inspiring while men have eyes to read or ears to hear. That was a great cradle in which Washington lay, for from it came forth the happy deliverance of a nation. That was a great cradle in which John Howard lay, for from it came forth a mercy that will not cease until the last dungeon gets the Bible and light and fresh air. Great cradles in which the John Wesleys and the John Knoxes and the John Masons lay, for from them came forth an all conquering evangelization. But the greatest cradle in which child ever slept, or woke, laughed or cried was the cradle over which Mary bent and to which the wise men brought frankincense and upon which the heavens dropped song. Had there been no manger, there had been no cross. Had there been no Bethlehem, there had been no Golgotha. Had there been no incarnation, there had been no ascension. Had there been no start, there had been no close.

WHAT CAN WE DO FOR CHRIST?

Standing in the chill khan of a Saviour's humiliation, and seeing what he did for us, I ask, What have we done for him? "There is nothing I can do," says one. As Christmas was approaching in the village church a good woman said to a group of girls in lowly and straitened circumstances, "Let all now do something for Christ." After the day was over she asked the group to tell her what they had done. She said, "I could not do much, for we are very poor, but I had a beautiful flower I had carefully trained in our home, and I thought much of it, and I put that flower on the church altar." And another said, "I could not do much, for we are very poor, but I can sing a little, and so I went down to a poor sick woman in the lane, and sang as well as I could, to cheer her up, a Christmas song." "Well, Helen, what did you do?" She replied, "I could not do much, but I wanted to do something for Christ, and I could think of nothing else to do, and so I went into the church after the people who had been adorning the altar had left, and I scrubbed down the back altar stairs." Beautiful! I warrant that the Christ of that Christmas day gave her as much credit for that earnest act as he may have given to the robed official who on that day read for the people the prayers of a resounding service. Something for Christ! Something for Christ!

A plain man passing a fortress saw a Russian soldier on guard in a terribly cold night, and took off his coat and gave it to the soldier, saying, "I will soon be home and warm, and you will be out here all night." So the soldier wrapped himself in the borrowed coat. The plain man who loaned the coat to the soldier soon after was dying, and in his dream saw Christ and said to him, "You have got my coat on." "Yes," said Christ, "this is the one you lent me on that cold night by the fortress. I was naked, and ye clothed me." Something for Christ! By the memories of Bethlehem I adjure you!

In the light of that star
Lie the ages empearled.
That song from afar
Has swept over the world.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!
STOP IT NOW.
SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

OUR GOLD MINES.

The Claims in Cariboo---What They are Doing---Fine Prospects.

BARKERVILLE, Oct. 31.—Cariboo is justly famed at home and abroad for her vast wealth of the precious metal, which is so bountifully deposited in the creeks and gulches. But never before in the memory of the "oldest miner" could she boast of so much luxury in climate as she has been favored with at this season of the year. The last week in October, with its warm, sunny days, and mild moonlight nights will not be soon forgotten by the present inhabitants of this place. To-day was one of the warmest of the week, the thermometer standing at 60 degrees in the shade at 4 p.m. Nevertheless, nearly all the open diggings have been laid over for the season. There is considerable prospecting going on, principally on outside creeks.

The express from the south fork of the Quesnelle arrived here yesterday. Mr. Sittler, the mail carrier, reports several companies at work, and many new locations being made, Shoo Fau, the Chinese mining prince, being one of the principal locators. On Grouse Creek, the Short Bend Co. are running a tunnel to strike the back channel, and the Sims-Jarvis and McFarland companies are prospecting for high bench, hydraulic claims. The Muller Co. is prospecting for the hill channel. The Waverley Co. have laid over for the winter. On Conklin Gulch the Cora Co. is running a prospect drive to find the channel, which paid so well two years ago. The Long Tunnel Co. has stopped hydraulizing and are running a prospect tunnel, to find pay in the old Reed ground. On William's Creek, the hydraulic claims above Richfield have laid over for the winter. Yesterday a party of Chinamen staked off claims along the old wagon road, below the Catholic Church. It is supposed they struck some pay, cleaning over old bed rock, and are following up the strike. The Black Jack, Quartz Co., has let a contract for another forty feet, below the present level, at $16.75 per foot. The vein is pitching towards the main shaft, and the ore is richer as it goes down. Great interest is being taken in this mine, and shares are readily sold at 35 cents. Nine hundred shares changed hands last night and to-day; this afternoon an advance of 5 cents per share was asked. Stephen Matice is running a tunnel in the old Aurora ground, and expects to strike the hill channel, the Forest Rose Company has closed down for the season, having had a good run. On Mosquitto Creek the upper hydraulic claim, owned by Hobert, Flynn & Bro., paid very well this season, as also the Alabama claim, owned by Joseph Mason, M.P., and others. On Hard Scrabble, Jos. Shaw & Sons had a very fair run this season, taking out considerable of the precious stuff. On Slough Creek, seven companies of Chinamen are at work on the high bars. They have taken out considerable gold this season, between Devils canon and Nelson creek. One company of Chinamen is running a tunnel at the mouth of Nelson creek to strike the channel below the mouth.

A number of capitalists, represented by Mr. Chas. Ramos, have taken up three miles of Slough creek, and have applied to the government for a grant of the same. They intend to push work with all speed if their application is granted. All Cariboo men anticipate great results from this creek, if properly handled. On Lightning creek Harry Jones and Fred Tregillis are cleaning out the old Spruce tunnel, to tap the Smith Wales ground, where they intend to find a high bench which was known to exist while the deep channel attracted all the notice. The Martin Bros. are running a tunnel at the mouth of Van Winkle to tap the pay in the shaft which they found this summer. Sam Montgomery is running a tunnel in the James Bros. ground, for the hill channel of Lightning. John Reed is working at the upper end of the Ross claim, where the lead was lost some years ago. A company of Chinamen is working in the old Van Winkle claim and taking out good pay. Donovan creek, about two miles above Beaver Pass, is attracting some attention. The discoverer has been working there for the last three years and only recorded his claim this season which caused the boys to think that he has a good thing, and several parties went down and made locations. Among the number who have gone to stay, are Billy Barker, Dave Edwards, Sy Roe, Frank Orr and George Munroe, who expect to find wages at least. The diggings are about fifteen feet deep, showing a fine bed of gravel. The creek has a grade of about ten feet to the hundred, and water sufficient for two sluice heads.

The Government Chlorination Works are nearly completed, only lacking a few finishing touches to the interior of the building. The superintendent, Mr. Martin, deserves great credit for his energy in pushing this much needed enterprise, as much depends on the development of the quartz interest at the present time. There is now about 50 tons of concentrates at the mill, 30 tons from Island Mountain and the balance from the Black Jack. It is estimated that these concentrates will yield not less than $40 to the ton. SOMAR.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

TO THE EDITOR.—There is, perhaps, no country in this world of which so little is accurately known as Australia—so overated, so under-rated. Dramatists and novelists have for years used it as a field remote enough to novelistically recoup consumptive estates, or in which to work out some tragic revenge. These, together with bloodcurdling stories of the old convict days, have been the means of enveloping the great island in a more or less mystic haze, through which the average eye is a long time penetrating. The writer remembers the vagueness of the geography behind which he used to read "Jack the Bush Ranger, or Forbidden to Blush." That educational effort—the geography—contained a ragged red blotch in a sea of blue, sprinkled here and there with black dots, arranged in uncertainty, supposed to be towns. An elongated spasmodic quiver of the mapper's pen had given birth to the Murray River, while the blot at the mouth—since learned to be Lake Alexandrina—the publishers, no doubt, had their own good reasons for not nameing. That was some years ago, when there was, perhaps, some little excuse for such an educational contortion, but when one picks up a wooden tool of torture bearing the title "Harper's Geography," and therein reads that "Australia is noted for the production of cotton," it reaches close on to that point where patience ceases to be a virtue. In this latter named book, which is an American production, the author's imagination has been rivalled by the artist's, who comfortably seats a kangaroo with his scaled tail curled around him like a cat's. Now, it is a shame to stuff poor little children with such inky untruths, but it is positively cruel to treat that unfortunately shaped brute, the kangaroo, in any such manner. In the first place this animal's immense tail is covered to the tip with the same quality of hide and fur that adorns his back and consequently lays no claim to the scales of the crocodile; and, in the second place, it is as impossible for the kangaroo to curl his tail under him as it is for a milkstool to do without its third leg. The successful execution of Hogarth's curve of beauty may bring a self-satisfied smile to the face of the artist but it means shipwreck to Australia's gigantic grasshopper, who, when in full motion needs that rigid appendage for ballast and with it completes his tripod when stopping to take an observation.

Printers ink has for a long time been considered an unreliable and even a guilty thing, politically, but surely no one dreamed of its stooping so low as to take advantage of an unsophisticated child or ill-treat a foreign brute.

WHAT ARE THE CHANCES FOR RECIPROCITY?

That Republicans are apathetic voters, save during presidential years, is a well-known fact; that, however, the Republicans owe their recent defeat to this cause is not borne out by appearances, and the Seattle Journal calls upon its protectionist contemporaries to acknowledge it. It was the MCKINLEY bill that defeated the Republicans, says the Journal, in effect. The defeat of the Republicans in such states as Massachusetts and Pennsylvania was not owing to purely local causes. It was the MCKINLEY bill that did it. And the Journal is quite correct. The people of the United States were not to be imposed upon by this legislative monstrosity, a measure without parallel considering the circumstances, and without a single redeeming feature as promising better wages and better markets to compensate for increased cost of living. Canada, almost as deep in the mud as the Republicans are in the mire, ought to commiserate with them in this their dark hour of adversity. But Canada somehow cannot do so, for however apparent to Canadian sight is the MCKINLEY beam in the eye of American National Policyists, they are profoundly indifferent to the FOSTER mote in their own. But though Canadians, for obvious reasons, cannot bring themselves to sympathize with the Republicans, they at least have these words of comfort for them: they do not apprehend the utter collapse of protection. The United States is a big country and "infant industries" will continually crop up, and with spontaneous accord will cry for extra "pap." The habit of spoon-feeding these incipient institutions has become so nearly confirmed that not for several years yet will it be abandoned. Nevertheless, protection as set forth in the MCKINLEY bill, is, doubtless, a dead letter, its ruin owing to the fact that the people have learned that home competition does not reduce prices; nor have they reached this conclusion by the process of abstract reasoning. The operations of trusts have afforded them ocular demonstrations of how the thing is done, how production is stayed and how prices are fixed, not with reference to fair prices, but for the purpose of extorting from the consumer every cent he will stand. With a duty of, say, 30 per cent., the consumer is made to pay not less than 35 per cent., by the creation of fictitious scarcity, and the McKinley bill, with its 60 per cent. duty, is calculated to still further add to the profits of the combinisters by forcing the consumer to pay not less than 50 per cent. of this impost, thus exploding the fallacy that the producer pays the duty. With this species of blackmail in operation, and so simple withal that the densest voter is able to understand it, we have in the victory of the Democrats not the result of Republican apathy, but the consequence of Republican activity. Massachusetts and Pennsylvania were never carried for the Democrats without Republican votes. Thus, it might be said, the cock robin of protection was killed by the sparrow of trusts. But what really concerns us is, how will the demise of McKinleyism affect Canada. Example is contagious. Will Canada emulate her American cousins? The supporters of National Policy all along have held held that the Americans would not have free trade or reciprocity at any price. What will be the burden of their song now? Can they decently claim that overtures for reciprocity would be rejected.

It seems to us as if Canadian Tories were as badly stricken by this Democratic victory as their Republican neighbors. In the recent verdict of the American people the Canadian McKinleys have suffered the loss of their most effective weapon. They can no longer urge with decency that the Americans are not in favor of a liberal trade policy. The only weapon that Canadian McKinleys now have left is mudsishness. The people of the United States agreed that a liberal trade policy is desirable, the policy of the "red parlor" must be abandoned. Sir JOHN and his supporters no longer can decently claim that reciprocity with the States would be rejected.

THE UPPER STRATA AND THE MUDSILLS.

The Colonist complains that we are discourteous. We can assure our contemporary that we took a second, third and even fourth thought before we penned the fool-bigot phrase, and we are sorry to say, the nature of the Colonist's rejoinder seems to confirm the general correctness of our observation. Assuming, as the Colonist does, that the upper strata of society is in no need of reform, and deliberately misrepresenting us by stating that we hold that 2,000,000 illiterates might safely be permitted to remain in their ignorance, the conclusion is forced upon us that the Colonist is either what we represented it to be or has lost its head altogether. But this feature of the case is immaterial. The Colonist is wrong in all its premises. The illiterates of society can never be educated up to the point where demagogues will find themselves with occupation gone. Example is stronger than precept. Educate a person never so thoroughly in point of precept, and if his associations be evil the chances are nineteen in twenty that his notions of morals will become loose. Example is everything. It is useless to teach LAZARUS the Decalogue when daily he sees DIVES treading it under foot. Nor have any great reforms ever been accomplished by the "mudsills" of society within themselves. They have invariably required the support of the upper and consequently the intelligent members of society. Had JACK CADE been backed by half a dozen aristocrats, what was a mere riot would have attained the dignity of a rebellion. The Colonist would have us believe that demagogues are ignorant. None but smart men make successful demagogues. But the Colonist's affectation of honesty is made all the more transparent, by alluding to TWEED and BUCKLEY, both men of more than average intelligence, and ignoring the red parlor and RYKERT. With such examples of rascality as these before us, is it worth while to ask the lower strata of society to be virtuous? Example, we repeat, is everything. Let the ruling classes set the example of common honesty and in the mudsills of society they will have emulators to that extent that will guarantee the stability of our institutions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canadian manufacturers, if they are of the right stamp, are able to hold their own in competition with any others in an open market. The case is cited of a tanner in the province of Quebec who some years ago commenced tanning hides in a small way for exportation. His hides were sent to England, and although he had to compete with similar goods from the States and elsewhere, he found that he could carry on a remunerative business. This has gone on prospering and increasing until now it amounts to a thousand hides a week. A man who can do a successful business in an open market in competition with American tanners could do an equally successful business in the United States if he had the chance, and would have no reason to dread American competition in Canada.

Rejoining to "British Columbia grievances" as emanating from the Empire's "Budget from Ottawa," Mr. ROBERT WARD simply paralysis "young" Mr. TUPPER. Mr. TUPPER makes the statement that not for the last five years has the department received a single communication in the matter of "beacons, lights and buoys" from the British Columbia Board of Trade. To this Mr. WARD rejoins that for "years past representations on this question have been made to Governor-General, cabinet ministers," etc., and draws the conclusion "that it is apparant that the archives of the Marine and Fisheries Department 'are not kept as they ought to be.'" Further, says Mr. WARD, "Assuming no communication had been made for five years, as is alleged by the minister, then it is apparent that the department is quite indifferent in its attentions to the protection of life and shipping upon our northwestern sea coast." In relation to British Columbia fisheries Mr. WARD, gives the minister another stab by pointing out that "it requires a good many representations to government departments before even reasonable 'grievances' can be redressed, another glaring instance of this having been demonstrated for many months past in regard to the fisheries regulations now operating in British Columbia, and which could be readily placed on a fair and equitable basis, provided the minister would only act upon a reasonable suggestion, repeatedly made, to enable him to acquire reliable, practical and unbiased information relating to this most important industry of the province." The first thing Mr. WARD will know, the people will find it expedient to have him represent them in the Dominion House of Parliament.

The Globe, under the heading of "facts for the Ottawa Government," points to some features of the McKinley bill which they might emulate with profit to the consumer. In the first place, points out the Globe, the McKinley bill admits all sugars free up to and including No. 16 Dutch standard. Jute, also, is placed on the free list. "Jute, a vegetable fibre grown principally in India, has taken a place with flax and hemp in the economics, being converted into a great variety of articles, including carpets, oilcloths, bagging, canvas, matting, rope, twine, clothes lines and yarns of various kinds. Dundee is the jute manufacturing centre of the world, but the industry has taken root in the States at Paterson, N. J., and other places. Under the old tariff raw jute paid a duty of 20 per cent., while jute butts, also free now, paid $5 per ton. According to a New York paper the jute men have made a cut in the price of their wares since the new tariff was adopted." By the admission of sugar and jute free the consumer will be immensely benefitted, and the Globe recommends that "our parliament legislate on the same lines." Last year the amount of duty collected on sugar amounted to $8,304,000, or 62 per cent., while in the matter of binding twine we pay a doty of 25 per cent. ad valorum. The Globe further points out that the "reciprocity clauses, which provide for the imposition by the President of duties on sugar, molasses, coffee, tea or hides from countries which in his opinion are not treating American exports fairly in their tariffs, do not come into force until January 1, 1892; yet Cuba and Brazil are already discussing the advisability of lowering their duties on the agricultural and other products of the United States in order to obtain free admission into the States for the other articles named, of which they are exporters. Here again the Yankee farmer stands to profit. His flour and pork sales will without doubt be enlarged by reciprocity with sugar-producing countries." Finally, says the Globe, after pointing out that the laws against combines and trusts are more stringent in the States than in Canada, "we shall be told in querulous tones that it does not matter to Canadians what Congress has done or may do in behalf of the American farmer or anyone else; that the patriotic course for us is to frame our legislation in our own way regardless of that of any other country. This proposition is not, under existing circumstances, a sound one. It is absolutely essential, if we desire to keep the Canadian farmer at home, that the conditions of production under which he has to get his living should be at least as favorable as those which prevail in the States." Will Ottawa be moved by this salutary advice? It is not likely. The sugar and the binding twine combines will not permit it to be so.

EXPLANATORY.

TO THE EDITOR.—Your paragraph in yesterday's paper tends to give quite a wrong impression of my accident on Tuesday, not as stated, on Wednesday. Further, my horse did not take fright, but the car left the track and ran into the buggy, throwing myself and man out. The horse then took fright. The man and I have neither of us been able to follow our employment since. The buggy and harness were both broken in the fray. Pardon me for intruding on your space. Yours truly, E. BRAGG.

KOOTENAY EAST.

TO THE EDITOR.—This has been a reasonably good season for the miners generally. The Ridgeway & Scoley claim on Weaver Creek took about $1500 for three months work. I hear Griffith hydraulic giant claim, on Wild Horse Creek, cleaned up about $10,000. The Chinese have not cleaned yet, though they are sure, as they all have plenty of water.

Mr. Charles Clark has been appointed customs collector for this part of the district, which gives much satisfaction to his many friends and admirers. He is a man of sterling qualities, and will do his duty without fear or favor.

A SUBSCRIBER.

COURT AT GRANITE CREEK.

TO THE EDITOR.—Perhaps your readers would like to read the court news from Granite creek. The circuit judge came here and opened court on the 21st inst. The docket was not a very dark one and with two exceptions did not call for any special effort on the part of the court. The first was the case of Grey Wolf, an Indian, charged with having a bottle of bug juice in his possession, and refusing to tell where he got it. In opening the case his honor assumed so bland and philanthropic a demeanor as would have enlisted the confidence of any one but an old offender. The Indian was asked if he recognized the bottle before the court. He answered that he thought he had seen it often. He was asked where? and answered, it looks like the same old bottle that was used for fineing the Indians in Nicola. The eye of the beadle glared on the offending brave in a way that meant mischief. It was evident that kindness was thrown away on the savage, and he was sent to the bastile for an hour while the court went to dinner.

When the court again resumed its sitting the whole atmosphere had changed. Inflexible sternness sat upon the judicial countenance and the beadle as he pushed the prisoner into the awful presence, gave him to understand that any further trifling with the majesty of the law would not be tolerated. Grey Wolf took the situation in at a glance. He seemed to quail beneath the austerity of the court, and as if expecting purgatory, or worse punishment, he cut the sign of the cross several times around his head, drew his blanket closer around him, and doggedly resigned himself to his fate, refusing to throw any further light on the tangle-foot. After a sharp lecture he was discharged, and went on his way, wondering where that bottle would turn up next.

The next was the red letter case of the day, and was an arraignment of the miners of the district for not showing proper respect to the Beadle, and as the judge read the complaint his face assumed an expression that boded ill to gold mining and miners generally; but as his eye rested on the figure of the complaining witness his features [illegible] smile, which was instantly hidden behind a huge bandana. As a matter of course his honor dismissed the case and read the boys a lecture on the evil of making a man feel alone in the wilderness. He said that in towns the officer had compensations that were not met with here. JIM BECKWITH.

JOSEPH COOK'S LECTURE.

TO THE EDITOR:—Your able criticism of the lecture recently delivered in this city by Rev. Joseph Cook was, I think, pretty generally endorsed by thinking readers, and not a few of them are to be found among the manual workers whom Mr. Cook would fain lift from their state of venality and ignorance, and elevate to a higher plane of intelligence and morality—intelligence to comprehend the nature of and cure for the many ills which afflict the body politic, moral principle at the ballot box to crystallize their honest convictions into statutory law. Now Mr. Cook is undoubtedly a gentleman of culture and ability, but unfortunately, like many others of patrician birth, and reared in the exclusive atmosphere peculiar to that class, he has imbued specious though fallacious processes of reasoning, and mistakes the direful existing results of our distorted and incongruous civilization for the real causes that have brought them about. From his elevated pedestal he imagines that he grasps the true situation of the struggling, suffering masses of humanity on the social plane beneath him, without turning himself sufficiently to take in the whole circle of vision, or stooping low enough to catch the full pathos of their heart-groans and see the strong, though to him, now invisible web of fate in which the intelligent but unscrupulous spiders of society have entangled them. In his hurried efforts to mass and hurl his undisciplined forces against the citadel of ignorance, he careers wildly upon his charger and flourishes his sword with more brilliance than discretion, while the random cuts he deals right and left are as likely to wound friend as foe. Flying off at a tangent from his proper theme, by a sectarian tirade, he shocks our sense of the proprieties, and wounds the sensibilities of many who very naturally expected from a gentleman of Mr. Cook's reputed mental caliber more substantial food for thought. If "speaking out in meetin'" were permitted at his lectures, I think he would be kept busy striking heads to keep them down, and would find them as stubborn and numerous as those of the fabulous Hydra, and as hard to keep down as the ghost of Banquo. People are beginning to see that it pays better to do their own thinking than hire it done for them, as formerly, and in the increased light obtained thereby they are abundantly able to hold their own, even against such heavy-weights as Joseph Cook. Their conception of what constitutes "natural wages" may not accord with his views, but the actual producers, whether by brain or muscle, are beginning to think that the labor which produces all wealth, after at great risk to life or limb, should at least receive an equitable portion of that wealth; nor can any process of reasoning make them content to receive as just compensation, whatever crumbs and scraps capital may think fit to throw to them under the table which labor's tired brains and hard hands have piled so high with the good things of life that it groans beneath the bountiful store. Mr. Cook may be a reformer, but, judging from the dubious and charlatan-like manner in which he juggled with the great problems of the age, while here, I for one, thinks he was for the nonce decidedly out of his proper sphere; and if he had known the high estimation in which a high and cultured portion of his audience hold that "great prophet of San Francisco," Henry George, I think he would have been more scrupulous in the selection of the language with which he so unceremoniously waved him aside. The real students of George's works are too well-grounded in the laws that regulate wages and land-values to pay more than passing attention to such empirical and illogical propositions as those advanced by Mr. Cook, so far as they aim at a removal of present injustices or the permanent uplifting of humanity. Mr. Cook's strong faith in the efficacy of Protestant schools and churches does not seem very well grounded if one may judge from existing conditions in localities where they predominate over those of other sects. Take Toronto, for instance, which may be called an ultra Protestant city, containing probably a larger proportion of Protestant churches and schools than any city of its size in the world; yet even there gaunt poverty, want, vice and crime rear their unwelcome forms and menace the peace of society. There every summer fresh air funds are subscribed to by the charitably inclined to give the suffering children of the dense tenement districts a few whiffs of fresh country air, and a temporary acquaintance with unobstructed sunlight. Poverty results from unjust distribution of wealth, in many cases. Vice and crime result largely therefrom, therefore the more just distribution of wealth will lessen poverty and its inevitably evil results. There is a cause for the depraved conditions Mr. Cook would fain eradicate, but he either does not apprehend its nature or prefers to ignore it. The people are robbed of their birthright—free access to unoccupied land, and until we restore to them, by some means, what has been stolen from them, until we learn to do justice and recognize the fact that we are all children of a common Father and as such have a natural right to some portion of this earth which was created for all, until, in short, we abolish the inhuman laws that fence men off from their God-given heritage all other efforts to heal the wounds upon the body politic will prove futile. "Let justice be done though the heavens fall."

He came to Canada in 1852, in the employ of the Bank of British North America, and was appointed to the civil service in 1855, and held the inspectorship position since 1873. He was highly esteemed.

CHOOSING A BUSINESS.

A Serious Question for All Young Men to Consider.

"The question of choosing a business is a serious one. As a rule, a young man should adopt the calling for which he has a preference. If he has no particular choice, it would be well for him to try different occupations, until he finds one that suits him. I do not counsel changing about to gratify a spirit of uneasiness, for once a young man is installed in the business that he is suited to, he ought to stick to it," writes Russell Sage to the New York Herald. "I have known young men who entered employments reluctantly and, after a trial, became fond of them. A young man must be determined to succeed. After all, there is one great lever, and that is will-power. Without it very few men succeed.

"It depends on the circumstances whether failures betray incapacity in a man. If a failure is due to a cause not general, then it may be attributed to a lack of foresight and understanding. A shrewd merchant will not stock up with unsalable things; a shrewd farmer will not plant his ground to raise unsalable crops. Both the merchant and the farmer must find out what is most salable and act accordingly. There are exigencies, to be sure, like contagions, disasters, combinations, strikes and boycotts, that can not be foreseen. The prudent man of business has prepared himself to stand losses from such causes, and when the troubles have passed the fact of his having weathered them makes his financial position in the community stronger than ever. The present condition of the coal trade well illustrates the uncertainty of things. The mild, open winter could not be foreseen, and has caused great dulness and loss in the trade. Then there is the march of improvement. This is an age of competition, and it requires energy and perception to meet it. It used to take 90 days to find out the condition of the tea crop in Japan or the coffee crop in Brazil. Now an inquiry can be sent and an answer secured in a single day.

"The young man should start out in the world by the time he is 21. If he is qualified to begin life for himself at an earlier age he should do it. I began as a clerk when I was 12. At 18 I was in business for myself, and I have kept my sign up ever since. I should say that the average boy could take a clerkship at the age of 16 or 18. A wrong start need not mean a permanent failure. Many of the most successful men have started wrong and afterward righted themselves. There are many instances where men educated for the pulpit have gone to the bar and been conspicuous successes. Then, again, men educated for the bar have gone to the pulpit and achieved success."

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

The McKinley Bill Believed to Have Been Disastrous to the Republican Party.

The fact of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and other New England States going Democratic this year is certainly a Waterloo for the Republican party. A defeat such as this in the stronghold of protection will no doubt have a depressing effect upon the Republican party in the doubtful states. The question is, who is responsible for this decided turn of affairs? Was it McKinley or Blaine? Have we not here another Roscoe Conklin affair? Had Mr. Conklin supported Blaine it is now conceded Mr. Blaine would have been elected by a large majority. Had Blaine supported the McKinley Bill the Republican party would have carried everything before them. Nevertheless we are not in favor of the McKinley Bill. Had Bill McKinley been able to see the effect of his McKinley Bill in the same light that we of Victoria view it, or had he come to Victoria, and had a pair of Mr. Seward's celebrated spectacles adjusted to his short-sighted eyes, he would have been able to see clear through the election. He would have found Mr. Seward's office at the corner of Yates and Douglas streets, and although he may be Bill McKinley, of McKinley Bill fame, he would be obliged to await his turn at Mr. Seward's busy office. Mr. Seward is going east in a few weeks, and will probably call on Bill McKinley to suggest as a substitute for the McKinley Bill a bill of reciprocity.

SHE GOT DAMAGES.

A Man Who Knew His Rights and Dared Maintain Them.

A contractor for a new building on Michigan avenue left the cellar unguarded at a certain spot, and a young man who was passing by on his way into a grocery tumbled in. A gash was cut in his scalp, two teeth loosened, his ear cut, and his coat was ripped up the back.

"Where's the boss of this job?" he demanded, as he got up.

"I'm the man," replied the individual named. "I'm very sorry this happened, and what—"

"Sorry, are you! Well, being sorry won't pay the damages! I want you to come down."

"I am sorry, as I said before, and am willing to do what is right. If you—"

"No beating around, now! I want cash damages."

"How much?"

"Well, I tell you what it is, a man who will set a trap of this kind for people ought to be made to sweat for it; and if you don't fork over two shillings, I'll law you clear to the Supreme Court and back again."

"Two shillings?" gasped the boss.

"Yes, two shillings, and not a red less."

It was handed to him quicker than greased lightning, and as he went his way he said to some of the bystanders:

"That's the way to get your rights—stand right up to folks!"

ONE OF THE THINGS
we are apt to grumble at
IN FRANCE,

THE providing of one's own soap at hotels! Permit me to remark that this is one of those things

They do manage better in France

than we do here. I am strongly of opinion that every one when travelling should carry his or her own soap as one takes one's own hair-brush or sponge. It is much more cleanly, and there can be no better providing in this respect for the hot sun and warm winds and dust of travel than a cake of which, under such circumstances, I have found very efficient in the prevention of sunburn and allied annoyances.

HARRIS VS. DOUGLAS.

Argument of This Interesting Case in the Divisional Court.

(Before the Chief Justice and Justices McCreight and Walkem.)

The argument in the Harris vs. Douglas case occupied the entire attention of the Divisional Court yesterday. The case for the respondents was opened by the Attorney General who spoke for some time.

Mr. Davie said these are two appeals from two orders by Mr. Justice Drake, one on the 3rd September and the other just two months later, the 3rd of November of the present year. The first order was made upon application to Mr. Justice Drake to rescind an ex parte order given by the Chief Justice. The second order was upon an original application. The first order restrained defendant, that is the mother, from taking her two children out of the jurisdiction of the court. The second order restrained the mother from taking these children, or either of them, to a Roman Catholic place of worship—that is the independent order—or from permitting them to be taught in the doctrines of that church. The technical effect of the last order was to prevent the children being taken to church at all, or to be instructed in any kind of Christianity. It was from the general spirit of the order that he appealed. Mr. Davie proceeded to detail the facts which gave rise to these proceedings, which have already been given to the public. He showed that the last time Mr. Douglas ever went to church was in England when he attended a Roman Catholic church. Plaintiff was fully aware three years and a half ago of Mrs. Douglas conversion and of the fact of her bringing up her children in the Roman Catholic faith. She was in San Francisco all this time with the exception of one or two visits to Victoria. Notwithstanding this no steps were taken until now, after Mrs. Douglas had obtained an order against Plaintiff to pay her $8000, to assert the authority of a guardian in bringing up the children in the Protestant faith, and it was after all arrangements had been made for Mrs. Douglas to go to England in order to take her children to school there that plaintiff got this ex parte order restraining her from taking the children beyond the jurisdiction of the court. Now it is quite clear that in the eye of the law all methods of Christianity are the same; there is also the fact that the religious persuasion of the father governs that of the child, unless there be some circumstances which would justify the court in departing from that rule. There is also the consideration whether it will benefit the child to have disturbed that religious belief which it has been taught, and from which it may have gained some settled convictions. If it can be shown that the child has received certain religious impressions, the court will not disturb those impressions. Still it is perfectly true that the father during the minority of his children has a right to control their religious education, and even to disturb their faith, which may appear hard when the children have been brought up by the mother in another faith. But there the principle stops; it does not extend to a testamentary guardian, as in the present case. Take the case of Agar Ellis as an instance. The best and strongest point which the other side would bring forward would be the fact of her keeping the children out of the jurisdiction of the court, but that would not avail them as they might still, having Mrs. Douglas payable through them, have compelled her to bring her children here. Mr. Davie thought that the proceedings, taken as they were two months after Mrs. Douglas' return, were purely the result of an after thought. But supposing they had had the intention of doing what they conceived to be their duty, it was quite within their power to make Mrs. Douglas do as they wished years before. There was no attempt to show that she had any independent means for the support of herself and her children; the whole of the estate was in the hands of the trustees, and had she contemplated any disregard of their authority they could readily have brought her to time by stopping her allowance, and thus cause her to come to a clear understanding with them, but they went on making her an allowance of $1000 with which to educate the children as Catholics. But nothing was attempted in this direction, and if this was not a clear case of acquiescence it would be difficult to find one. In the case of Montague vs. Montague the mother and children were out of jurisdiction, and the application was made in England to control the religious education of the children. Counsel in that case attempted to argue that because the lady was out of the jurisdiction of the court with her children, the court could not interfere; but the court very decidedly showed that it could interfere. It is quite evident that had the trustees had any intention of using their authority they ought not to have allowed three years and a half to have elapsed before they brought this matter before the court. In that time these children have no doubt obtained a very clear idea of the religion in which they were being taught by their mother. The case of Stourton vs. Stourton bears upon this, and has never been overruled or disapprovingly cited. It has been discussed very strongly from the right of parental authority, but so far as related to the testamentary guardian the learned counsel could not find any decision at variance with it. The longer this state of affairs goes on, the worse for the children. They must be taught and they must be disciplined; what will Mr. Harris do with them? The mother did not come to the conclusion of sending these children away to England without having the best of advice on the subject. Can any one say that a Jesuit seminary is the worst place for discipline? One of them had already had a term in a Jesuit school in San Francisco. Mr. Davie cited the cases of Hill vs. Hill re O'Malley and Davis vs. Davis. Of course here there are no expressed directions in the will, but even if there were such they would be disregarded in view of acquiescence. In the case of re Meade the court had a difficulty by reason of conflicting affidavits in ascertaining whether the child had received religious impressions which could not be interfered with without injury to the child's belief in Christianity. This shows that the court can exercise jurisdiction even in the life of the father. In the case before the court there is no conflicting evidence as to the impressions which three children have gained. The mother states in her affidavit the fact that she has brought these children up in the faith which she has adopted, she has also stated that it would be injurious to disturb their belief now. One of them has gone so far as to have received his first communion, and both are well versed for their ages in the doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church. There is no attempt to contradict that evidence. The nominal belief of the father was that of the R. E. Church, but it had been shown that he did not take the sacrament of that church. In fact it was proved that the last time he had been to church was to a Roman Catholic one in England.

The Chief Justice—A person may go to a Roman Catholic church for various reasons. I, myself, when I was in Europe last, went to five Catholic churches I daresay for the one Protestant church I visited. But I didn't go for the purpose of worshipping.

Mr. Davie, continuing—The father was indifferent as to what church he attended, he had no prejudices. As a matter of fact the occasion referred to was when Mr. and Mrs. Douglas together visited Cardinal Manning's church. In the case of re Scanlan Mr. Davie could not find anything that conflicted with the principles laid down in other authorities quoted before their lordships. The mother is now by law the guardian of her children, with others appointed with her. She has no greater power than her co-guardians with regard to the religious education, and unless under special circumstances she is bound to see that the children are trained in the religious belief of their father, but the special circumstance of the acquiesence in four years Catholic training existed here. The learned counsel's object was to ascertain whether these children had any set religious ideas, and there was no attempt made to contradict the statement in her affidavit to the effect that they had, and it would be wholly destructive to the welfare of these children if their religious belief were disturbed now. From the mother's point of view there is occasion for urgency in this case. The order of Mr. Justice Drake practically says that these children are not to have any religious training at all. But of course the mother is bound to obey the directions of the court.

Mr. Justice McCreight—Supposing the decree to be given at this hearing be appealed, or deferred, or that it goes to Ottawa, the religious training of these children would have to stop in the meantime?—that is the effect of Mr. Justice Drake's order.

Hon. A. N. Richards next addressed the bench on behalf of the plaintiff. His learned friend, Hon. Theo. Davie, had argued that the children have been trained by the mother in the Roman Catholic church, and that it is now too late to remove them. The plaintiff, he said, ought to have applied earlier for the exercise of the court's authority. Mr. Richards spoke of the parents having belonged to the R. E. Church, whose doctrines they professed.

Mr. Justice McCreight—What are the exact doctrines of the Reformed Episcopal church?

Mr. Justice Walkem—The trouble we have to decide is what are not the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church.

Mr. Richards—We have the very strong fact that when these children were born they were baptised into the R. E. church by Bishop Cridge. As to Mrs. Douglas' adoption of the principles of Romanism, she might as well have been baptised into that church here as in San Francisco. But if she wanted to do it secretly and unknown to the other guardians, she went the right way about it. She has violated her duty as a mother and a guardian by changing the religion of her children, and now she says its too late to remedy the matter. This is the act of a wrong-doer. It was her duty to have brought up the children in the religion of their father.

Mr. Justice McCreight quoted that passage of Mrs. Douglas' affidavit which says that her friends in Victoria were aware of the step she was taking.

Mr. Justice Walkem—Why was not that affidavit met by a counter affidavit in the court below. Is there any statement to qualify Mrs. Douglas' word pledged here in her affidavit?

The counsel for the plaintiff were not in possession of any such.

Mr. Davie pointed out to the court that ample time had elapsed in which the plaintiff could have met this statement, but had not.

The Chief Justice—For three years these children were down in San Francisco with a Roman Catholic mother, and the other guardians must have known what she was doing all this time, or they wilfully ignored their duty. In any case they procured several thousand dollars for her for the purpose of educating her children.

Mr Richards submitted that no case had been produced showing acquiescence on the part of the guardians. Their duty was clear, but the argument of his learned friend would imply that Mr. Harris was bringing a private action. There is no evidence on record to show that the mother ever brought the children to this country before, and when they were brought, the application was made within a reasonable time. Mr. Richards cited the cases brought up by Mr. Davie, and argued that they did not apply. There is no reason why the children should not be trained in their father's belief. Both of these children are going to be very wealthy, and had he known what was going to take place there is no doubt that the father would have appointed some other guardian than the mother.

Mr. Justice Walkem—We can't say that. Besides it does not make any difference in the case of either a rich Protestant of a rich Catholic; it is just a question of principle.

The Chief Justice, addressing counsel for the plaintiff: "The allegation is that you must have known three years ago that the mother was a Catholic then, or you didn't care, and you neglected your duty. Then you procured $1,000 a year to enable the mother to educate these children Catholics.

Mr. Pooley—The guardians here had nothing to do with that. That was given by Lady Douglas out of her husband's estate.

After some further argument of an unimportant character the case was closed and the Chief Justice said that their lordships would take time to consider the question. It is one of great importance; it is not one of dollars, but one which affects the moral welfare of the human race.

The court then rose.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

A GRAND TREAT.

The Swedish Quartette to Appear on the 21st of the Present Month.

The combined temperance societies have secured another treat for Victoria in the Swedish Quartette Concert Company, which will appear here on the first instant under their management. The quartette, Chas. A. Scrogg, first tenor, Henry Pugh, second tenor, A. Emil Skoog, baritone, and H. W. Wenberberg, basso, are all well known vocalists, and are the recipients of testimonials from all parts of the world. They appear on the stage in their picturesque native costumes, which adds much to their concerts. The company is also accompanied by Miss Lura Barden, one of the most popular and successful readers in the west. She is as yet very young, but her rare elocutionary attainments have already secured her a name far above many of her elders in the profession.

FIVE POUNDS OF SILVER.

A Noted Volunteer Fireman Wears a Silver Helmet With an Ancient History.

The following was taken from the Pennsylvania Grit of Sunday, July 27th last: "The hat which Professor Reeder had with him at Williamsport on July 4th, and about which there have been so many inquiries, he obtained in 1889, when on his last trip from Thomas Deasey, chief engineer of the Victoria (British Columbia) fire department. The style of hat (helmet) was common in 1648. The material from which it is made is silver, and weighs at least five pounds. It was first worn by Peterus Stuyvesant, director-general of the New Netherlands fire department in 1648, and from Stuyvesant it has been handed down from one generation to another, as a relic, until it fell into the hands of the reigning Queen of England, who, in 1700 presented it to the then chief of Victoria for an act of bravery in rescuing the crew of a burning vessel. The hat finally came into the possession of Chief Deasey, by inheritance, and, as stated, was presented Prof. Reeder by Deasey as a mark of appreciation and esteem. As a relic, the value of the hat is hardly to be estimated."

Chief Deasy gives another version regarding the helmet which appeared in the Pennsylvania Grit. He says: A man named Reeder arrived in Victoria last year for the purpose of collecting curios for a fireman's museum. Among other things Chief Deasy handed Reeder a silver plated helmet, which was purchased by the chief with the outfit of one of the retiring assistant engineers. The helmet was valued at five dollars and was useless as a relic. Reeder was known among the firemen in this city as "Old Relics." Mr. William Phillips of the London Harmony in this city, brother of the late Chief Engineer Phillips, also handed Reeder several curios. Reeder appears to have started a private museum, and, in order to attract the people of Pennsylvania, manufactured the story of the "Silver Helmet."

THE FAREWELL CONCERT.

An Entertainment Given of Unusual Excellence—The Next Attraction.

The Mendelssohn Quintette Club completed their engagement in Victoria last night, before a large and delighted audience. As exponents of high class music their equals would be difficult to find. Individually each and every one is an artist, and as a whole their execution is in perfect harmony.

Miss Marie Barnard, the charming vocalistc, will not soon be forgotten by the many people who had the pleasure of hearing her wonderful vocalization. It is hard to believe that this is Miss Barnard's first season, so easy and graceful is she, and with such little apparent effort does she take the most difficult passages.

Last evening Miss Barnard's selection was "Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark," by Bishop, with flute obligato, and at times during its rendition it was an effort to distinguish which was the flute and which the voice. In the second part of the programme she sang Arditi's Tarantella "A Forzetia" and received an ovation. In response to the encore "The Mocking Bird" and "Coming Thro' the Rye", were repeated.

In place of the Rondo Caprice announced on the programme, Mr. Isidor Schnitzler, the talented violinist, played a delightful Spanish dance, which he was obliged to repeat in response to the hearty approval accorded its first playing.

The 'cello playing of Mr. Jennison, the flute solo by Mr. Henneberg upon which instrument he plays two parts at once, and the clarinette fantasie of Mr. Ryan were all excellent, and received the hearty applause which they deserved, the artists kindly responding.

It is this class of entertainment that always meets with the approval and patronage of Victoria's best people, and due credit must be accorded to Mr. Adderly, under whose management the Quintette Club played this engagement. Mr. Adderly announces Meg's Diversion and Ruth's Romance by local talent, in aid of the building fund of the new Church of England cathedral, for next Wednesday evening, and as a recognition of his previous good taste and ability to entertain the public, the performance is deserving of a large attendance on its merits to say nothing of the object for which it is given.

An Owner Found.

The filly that had her leg so badly cut on a barb wire fence on south Pandora street on Wednesday belongs to Mr. Geo. Stelley. The animal strayed from his farm in Saanich. It is very likely that an action will be brought against the owner of the fence, although the filley is improving rapidly.

C. P. N. vs. Vancouver.

The hearing of the case of the Canadian Pacific Navigation company versus the City of Vancouver is set down for the 12th instant. This is memorable from the struggle between the company and the citizens regarding the landing of the Islander's passengers after she had had a case of smallpox on board.

Just the Thing.

To the real estate man in want of a reliable guide, T. N. Hibben & Co.'s new map of Victoria is just the thing. It shows him every detail in city and suburban property up to the latest possible date. No real estate firm in town should be without it. Parties outside dealing in Victoria property should also have it.

Accepted Passes.

The street railway companies of Seattle lately informed the board of aldermen of that city that free passes for members of that body over the different lines were to be had. Only two of the aldermen objected to this mild form of bribery, all the others voting in favor of accepting the dead-head tickets.

"A Big Thing."

The Union Pacific is selling round trip tickets, good for six months from date of sale, with four side trips, giving a choice of routes through the finest scenery on the continent. Vestibuled through trains, magnificent Pullman sleeping and dining cars; free tourist sleeping and reclining chair cars. Tickets to all points east, north and south. Call on or address Morris J. Several Reasons Why.

Why is Northfield coal the best?
1. It is the hardest.
2. Gives a hotter fire and consumes the least fuel.
3. It does not clinker.
4. Free from stone and slate.
5. It makes a cheerful fire burning free and clear.

Ten Cents Well Invested.

THE WEEKLY TIMES, the family newspaper par excellence, is on sale, full of interesting matter, local, provincial and foreign, this week. Ten cents cannot be better invested on this side of the Rockies than in THE WEEKLY TIMES. It may be on sale at the booksellers' still, but as it goes very rapidly a few copies are kept over at the office till Saturday for late customers.

Woodman, Spare That Tree."

No sentimental lover of arboreal beauties stayed the hand of the civic employees who to-day levelled to the ground the last of the shade trees which once clustered around the city hall. The trees are now all down, and the street graded and gravelled. While the loss of the trees is in some measure a matter of regret, the appearance of the city hall is improved by their absence.

Advanced Thought Lecture.

Arrangements are being made with Mr. C. B. Reynolds, of Seattle, by several gentlemen to have him deliver lectures here on advanced thought subjects. Mr. Reynolds was formerly an ordained minister, but has left the pulpit, and is now one of the prominent figures in secular education for the masses. He is said to be a fluent and agreeable speaker. He will probably lecture here some time during the latter part of the month.

Provincial Police.

The provincial police have been kept busy for the last few days looking after the bluejackets off the Warspite which sailed for the south to-day. A party of them were found at the flour mill house yesterday, having broken their leave and were consequently taken back. One man was still missing this morning and it is more than likely that he has deserted.

Officer Hunter left for Rocky Point to-day to hunt up Dorbey, the colored man, who is wanted for assaulting a man in the Colonial hotel.

Inspector of Wires.

On Wednesday evening next a motion will be brought before the board of aldermen for the appointment of an inspector of electric wires. The duties of the official will be to see that the different wires are so strung that the danger of their touching is obviated as far as possible. He will also see that all poles are safe and that the insulators are intact. It is understood that the street railway company will pay one-third of the salary, the telephone company another third, and the city the balance. At the present writing there is plenty of work for such an inspector, and if the duties are attended to the danger of crossed wires will be largely prevented.

The Anthony Furnace.

A great many people are unaware of the vast deal of difference between the Anthony steel plate furnace and the old style cast iron ones. In the latter the iron warped and cracked, the cement fell out, and coal gas, soot and smoke found its way up the air flues to the discomfort of those in the building so warmed, to say nothing of the danger. Determined to have the best, the directors of the new Pandora Avenue Methodist church purchased of Mr. Geo. Phillips one of the Anthony furnaces. This has a rivetted steel dome over the firepot, closing all communication between it and the hot air tubes. In consequence only pure hot air will be discharged through the registers, as not the slightest leak can occur in the rivetted steel plates.

The Queen Pays All Expenses.

The Queen's last "Free Trip to Europe" having excited such universal interest, the publishers of that popular magazine offer another and $200 extra for expenses, to the person sending the largest list of English words constructed from letters contained in the words "British North America." Additional prizes, consisting of Silver Tea Sets, China Dinner Sets, Gold Watches, French Music Boxes, Portiere Curtains, Silk Dresses, Mantel Clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit. A special prize of a Seal Skin Jacket to the lady, and a handsome Shetland Pony to the girl or boy (delivered free in Canada or United States), sending largest lists. Everyone sending a list of not less than twenty words will receive a present. Send four 3c. stamps for complete rules, illustrated catalogue of prizes, and sample number of the Queen.

MURDER.

One Chinaman Kills Another this Afternoon in James Bay.

At a late hour this afternoon the police received information that a foul murder had been committed at the corner of Kingston and St. Lawrence sts., James Bay. The murderer is a Chinaman, and his victim is of the same nationality. One of them was employed at the residence of Mr. Milligan. No further particulars could be obtained in time for this issue.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Walkem.)

November 8.

Perrin vs. the TIMES—A request was made by the plaintiff for the hearing of this case to be deferred till after the County Court sitting on the 13th. The reason alleged was that in the case of Perrin vs. Braden, the first named case is referred to, and the hearing of the former case first would interfere with the latter.

Marine Engineers Association.

The members of the B. C. Marine Engineers Association will meet at their rooms 76 Yates street this evening at 8 o'clock.

Big Real Estate Deal.

No less than nine lots on Dalles road changed hands this morning, the purchasers being Eastern parties and the sum paid being $9,300. The same investor purchased 300 acres of land on Royal Bay Roads at $70 per acre. This is one of the largest suburban real estate transactions that have taken place for some time and is no doubt an indication of a healthy movement in that direction.

St. Michael's, Lake District.

It understood the incumbent is endeavoring to raise funds to provide an organ, purchase a bell, and fence in the church property. Considering his district, which with Cedar Hill covers an area of 120 miles, there is much toil and work connected with this parish, without one cent of endowment. Let it be hoped energy and heavy duties shall secure the sympathies and support of those interested in the progress and work of the church.

Was Well Satisfied.

Mr. Hilbert from Nanaimo was here yesterday, looking after his business in this city. In a conversation he said that he was well satisfied with the way his boot and shoe stock at 74 Yates is being cleared out. He wishes to thank the public for their liberal patronage. Before leaving he gave Mr. Myers instructions to clear out all he can this week and ship the balance of the stock to Nanaimo Monday. Anybody in want of bargains in boots and shoes will do well to call before it is too late, 74 Yates street, between Government and Broad. Nov 4. 4t

One Trip Too Many.

The sloop Albatross, No. 15, a well-known Victoria craft, has been seized at Port Discovery for a violation of the U. S. revenue law. She left here about five days ago, it is supposed with either a load of Chinamen or opium. But the information received is very meagre and does not say what she had on board when taken. Two men were on board at the time and they were both caught. The sloop was well fitted for carrying Chinamen, and although an Italian, who bought her some time ago, claims to be a fisherman, his story is not credited, as several of his friends state that he had no fishing tackle or nets.

Lumber Capitalists.

A party of prominent men from Tacoma arrived by last night's Sound boat. They are: Henry Drum, vice-president Merchants' National Bank; P. A. Paulson, president Tacoma Manufacturing Co.; E. B. Cushing, president Tacoma Contract Company; L. H. Northey, real estate and coal operator; W. B. Allen, manager Tacoma Trust and Savings Bank, and D. Carmody, timber operator. They are here contemplating entering extensively on the lumber business, and it is more than likely that if some difficulties in connection with the obtaining of timber lands can be got over, that a big mill will be built on Vancouver Island. A large lumber mill plant at Tacoma is controlled by the gentlemen of the party, and their capital is unlimited.

Committed for Trial.

Mrs. May Olsen, who was charged some days ago with having stolen a satchel the property of Mrs. O. Ryan, was elected to stand her trial at the coming assizes by his honor, the police magistrate, to-day. During the proceedings Mr. Walls, for the defence, had an argument with his honor in relation to a witness' right to refuse to answer a question if it in any way tended to ruin his character, and not having any bearing on the case. Mr. Walls considered that the question had a bearing on the case, but after his honor gave in to him he refused to take the answer, as he said an argument over a question spoilt its usefulness.

Fast Time.

The Union Pacific vestibuled train leaving Portland at 7.00 a.m., has Pullman sleeping and dining cars. Free Pullman tourist cars, and free reclining chair cars to Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago, without change. Steamers leave Victoria daily (except Sunday.) For tickets to any point east, north and south, call on or address Morris J. Bissell, 100 Government St., Victoria B. C.

A Political Kindergarten.

In a pamphlet recently issued by the Union Pacific Railway as a guide to travelers in Oregon, Washington and Victoria, the writer pays Victoria quite a compliment as regards her position, etc. He however seems to take exception to the Assembly hall which he refers to as "a nursery of statecraft—a political kindergarten."

Missed the Boat.

When the steamship City of Topeka arrived at the outer wharf yesterday morning, Mr. McCurdy the custom house officer on board took a walk up town, but failed to reach the wharf again until the steamer had pulled out. He was therefore forced to stay here until this morning when he left for Nanaimo with the intention of catching the steamer at that port.

From the Yukon.

The steamer Mexico from Alaska ports has arrived at Nanaimo on her way down, and after loading coal comes on to Victoria and should arrive here this evening. She brought down a number of miners from Cassiar who have been in that country from three to six years. One of them states that he has just come down to take a peep at civilization for a few months and the whole of them intend to return again next summer.

A Promising Property.

The Puget's Sound Agricultural company call for tenders for the opening of following thoroughfares: Fraser strete from Esquimalt road to Armit road; Armit road from Fraser street to Munro street; Munro street, Stephenson road, Sea View road, Anson street, Robert street from Anson to Smith street, Smith street, Lyall stereet, Fern street, Victoria View road, Lampson street. This opens up one of the finest and most promising properties round Victoria. It will not be placed on the market until the roads are opened up.

The Unfortunate Drunk.

From the appearance of the police court calendar this morning it was plainly evident that officers Irvine and McDonald had a lively time on Store street last night. Four drunks pleaded guilty to having been drunk on that street during the night, and a fine of $5 each was imposed. A couple, as is usual, paid a fancy price for their fun in giving the officers trouble on the way to the station. Seeing these unfortunate drunks, as they are termed on account of having been unlucky enough to fall into the hands of a police officer, brings to one's mind the wonderful change that occurs to a man after a night in the cells. As a general rule, when arrested, nothing is too turbulent for them, and all kinds of threats are made to the officers. They will also make efforts to escape, but once inside the dock facing his honor, the worst of them are humbled and look as meek as children.

Mr. B. Pegg begs students to examine personally the following Diplomas, and Certificates secured by him.

Diploma of Fellowship of the Society of Science, Literature, and Art of London (England), 1890.

Diplomas—Honors in Greek, and First Class Latin, 1877.

Certificate for proficiency in French, from L. Stievenard, M. A., 1877.

Diploma for Technological science, city and guilds of London Institute, Gresham College, by Sir Philip Magnus, 1881.

Certificate of the Highest class for practical work under Prof. Judd, in Mineralogy, Geology, etc., in School of Mines, London, 1881.

Certificate of the Highest Class for practical work under Professor Guthrie, in Electricity, in School of Mines, 1879.

Certificate in practical work in Inorganic Chemistry, under Professor Hodgkinson, in the School of Mines, 1882.

Three advanced Certificates from Science and Arts' Department, S. Kensington, in Theoretical Sciences.

Freemason's, Master's Certificate, 1870.

Mr. Pegg studied Hebrew under Dr. Blancke in 1867, and has taught Hebrew, Spanish and German for years.

Commercial Correspondence, Accounts, Book-keeping and Pitman's Shorthand,

Have been Leading Subjects in his Teaching.

Students are requested to ask for proofs of the following facts: That after acting as Head Master for a year in Smythe street Academy, Wakefield, he resigned receiving a flattering testimonial and presentation. For eight years after he was Head Master in St. Charles' Grammar School, London, and on his resignation in 1883, he received the highest possible testimonial from his managers. Two years later, on resigning his appointment as Science Lecturer, and First Classical Master in St. Guithbert's Grammar School, Newcastle, the Lord Bishop of Newcastle, Canon Ramsay, and the managers gave him their highest commendation. After this he became Principal of the New Cross High School, and of Bath House College, Twickenham. From successful students preparing for Cambridge, London, Durham, Trinity, Edinburgh Universities; the Law, Medical, Local, Army, Engineering College, and Science examinations, about 50 letters are open to inspection.

Students can take Single Class Subjects, or the Course, and payments will be monthly.

A large number of Rooms are Furnished FOR BOARDERS.

As a teacher Mrs. Pegg holds the certificate of the Lords of the Council on education, England; First Class Kindergarten, Singing, and Science Certificates; and for about 20 years (10 as Head Mistress) was employed in the largest schools in England.

Evening Classes in all Subjects will be commenced at 7 p. m., on Monday, Nov. 10th.

Students can enter for Single classes, or for the course.
